

Spanish Songs

Farwell

September 26, 1923.

Dear Arthur:

If this providential - or a False Alarm!

I just got this letter from Birchard today, and am passing it to you before answering. I believe it was Locnis who came after you to finish up my book of songs.

I have a smell that they are talking about books on music, probably containing songs as illustrative of the text, rather than a mere book of songs. What you guess?

Let me know P.Q. for I want to answer them at once. If you will write them one of your Go-Getter letters at the same time, so much the better, for I should be a lame duck in comparison.

No news yet from the S.F printer? Ed Borein has barely got into his new Adobe, and perhaps now I can hope to stir him up to that cover design.

Always your Friend,
